TOM PRICE VOTE DEFIES PARTY LEADERS AND PUT AMERICA'S FINANCIAL SECURITY AT RISK

Rep. Tom Price's vote today against the revised financial system rescue bill is yet another example of how out of touch he is with the values and priorities of the voters of the Georgia 6th Congressional District. Dr. Price's prescription for our sick financial markets was assisted suicide. By rejecting the judgment and experience of Senators McCain, Isakson and Chambliss, who joined 122 other Republican Congressman and Senators in achieving this bi-partisan outcome, Congressman Price once again showed how out of step he is with his own party. His free-for-all economic philosophy threatened to leave 6th district residents with no guarantee of their next pay check while they watch their companies struggle and their retirement accounts shrink. Thankfully, pragmatism and political courage carried the day.

Bill Jones applauds the Georgia Senators and Congressmen who supported this bill, because while it has some significant shortcomings, it meets the threshold of bi-partisan support required – namely that a majority of the Senators and Congressmen from each party joined the President in passing this critical legislation.
